WHERE YOUR ARCTIC ADVENTURE BEGINS
Welcome to Tromsø – a sustainable destination!

Since late 2019, Tromsø has been accredited as a sustainable destination, promoting the local economy, involving the local community and reducing the industry’s carbon footprint, one step at a time. Together we can look after this delicate destination for future generations, for both visitors and locals alike.

Quality and safety are always in focus in our region, which is why we have launched this year our "Approved by Tromsø" stamp. All our suppliers need to meet our strict safety and sustainability requirements, including insurance, public transport and boat licenses and ensuring, not least, that their staff have the correct working rights and practices. That’s why, when you book your tour through Visit Tromsø, you are not only ensuring that your product is safe and of high quality, you are also contributing to the important long-term work we do for our destination and the arctic.

Whether you are here for a winter break, to capture the Aurora, and maybe take a ride with huskies in the wilderness, taking a winter fjord cruise in our magnificent nature, or here to enjoy the midnight sun, Visit Tromsø tourist information can help tailor-make your trip to ensure you make the most out of your trip to our region. We have expert help on hand, always independent, to help you plan the perfect trip for you.

If skiing is your thing, it has been said that the Lyngen Alps eclipse even some of the most sensational French Alps, but the snow conditions are very different. Please remember to check varsom.no for the latest avalanche updates, and we always recommend you to use a local guide.

The Arctic regions host a range of cultures, including the Sami, the indigenous people of Sápmi. You can discover how their rich heritage continues to thrive today, from fishing traditions, reindeer husbandry and arts and crafts.

The variety of our “city life” is second to none in the Arctic. One of the most attractive things about Tromsø is our lively city centre. With over 100 restaurants, cafes and bars to choose from, you are spoiled for choice. Look out for specialist restaurants that have local food on the menu. Not only will you ensure “eat like the locals”, you will also help support local suppliers.

Finally, please remember that Tromsø region is a delicate and vulnerable region. We have some guidelines on how you can help care for our region in the best possible way. Please take time to read our “caring for Tromsø” on page 10-11.

Welcome!
Caring for Tromsø
– a sustainable, world-class Arctic destination!

Everyone is welcome here and you are our guest. We encourage you to be considerate during your stay in Tromsø by following these simple guidelines. In this way, you will contribute to preserving the beautiful nature we have up here and ensure the locals enjoy hosting you.

1. Leave no trace – use established paths and fireplaces
As the saying goes “take only photos, leave only footprints”. Always use marked and established paths. Avoid leaving traces in the nature from pitching tents on soft, vulnerable ground or making stone cairns, etc. Only use established fireplaces and ensure there is no fire risk. Take your own firewood – never break off branches or twigs. Check that your fire is completely out before leaving. The lighting of fires or barbecues (including single-use barbecues) is not permitted in or near forests and other uncultivated lands in Norway from 15 April to 15 September.

2. Respect animals, birds and plants
Respect the animal life, especially during the spring calving and breeding seasons. Always keep a good distance from wild animals and avoid causing them unnecessary stress. Remember to keep your dog on a leash. Don’t disturb abandoned chicks or other baby animals. The removal of eggs from nests is not permitted. Avoid picking wild flowers as many wild flowers are rare so far north. Everyone has the right to pick wild blueberries, lingonberries and crowberries on uncultivated land. However, it is not permitted to pick cloudberries in enclosed areas.

3. Take your rubbish – only use existing toilets
Don’t leave any rubbish behind. Avoid using wet wipes because they take so long to decay. If there are no rubbish containers in the area, take all your rubbish with you. If nature calls in an area where there are no existing toilets, you must take used toilet paper with you in a separate bag.

4. Use camp sites
If you plan to pitch a tent, use an official camp site or established camping area with toilet and waste disposal facilities.

5. Respect private property
Don’t drive or park on private roads, forest roads or access roads without the landowner’s permission. If you open gates, remember to close them behind you to prevent grazing animals, like cows, sheep and reindeer, from escaping.

6. Going skiing or hiking – use local guides
The nature is beautiful, but it can also be unpredictable. For your own safety, we recommend going on organised trips with local guides during both the summer and winter seasons. The weather in the Arctic can change quickly. Note the length of the route and the time of the sunset. Always check the weather forecast on www.yr.no before setting off. Always take extra clothes and food – even on short trips. Read more about how to dress for Arctic conditions on page 12.

7. Be considerate
Be considerate to the locals and your fellow hikers. The silence of nature is part of the experience, for locals and visitors alike. In Norway, we generally greet people we meet along the hiking trail.

8. Avalanche safety
Troms is the county in Norway with the most avalanche accidents. Always check the weather conditions before going on a skiing or hiking trip. Good planning is good risk management. Check www.varsom.no for avalanche warnings and advice about how best to plan your trip. Check the weather forecast on www.yr.no. Remember the weather can change quickly. Be aware that avalanches in this region can block roads, so always take extra clothes and footwear – even if you are only going for a drive.

9. Road traffic safety
Rural roads are often narrow – remember to keep as far to the right as possible when driving and always walk on the left-hand side. Keep a good distance when passing cyclists. Always use a high visibility vest or reflector when you are out and about in the dark, regardless of whether you are in urban areas, walking beside roads or chasing the Northern Lights.

10. Photography, drones
There are many subjects you may wish to photograph. If you plan to photograph people, it’s important to ask first. The use of drones is prohibited on Tromsø’s main island, Tromsøya, as well as on parts of Kvaløya and the mainland. Check the rules on page 144.

Dress for success

In order for your stay in Northern Norway to be as comfortable as possible, it is important to have the right clothes.

Bring warm and comfortable clothes and shoes. We recommend wearing 100 percent wool or similar quality clothing next to your skin. Layer your clothing so that you can easily regulate your temperature by removing or adding a layer. Outer clothing should be lined and windproof. Many activity organizers supply clothing for excursions, i.e. thermal suits, shoes, hat and mittens.

Tromsø has a varied climate and in the winter an average temperature of around -4 °C. However, if you are coming here to experience Arctic adventures or chase the Northern Lights, you need to expect temperatures from -25 °C to +5 °C.

Spring & Summer (May-August)

Summer wool, summer hat, summer down-jacket and summer gloves are words the locals know well. The average temperature is 10 °C, so naturally we dress accordingly. In the early summer, from May-June, it can be a little wet and cold. It is a good idea to have a thin wool layer and a light wind- and rainproof jacket when exploring around the city. The weather in July and August– September tends to be better, but the same applies for these months as well. This is especially so if you intend to do any hiking. It is very important to take both warm clothing and a rain jacket with you whenever you go hiking. Remember: Weather changes quickly – and it is often a lot colder up in the mountains than it is in the city centre.

Autumn & Winter (September – April)

To feel really comfortable outdoors in winter it’s important to dress properly. Especially if you will be participating in some kind of physical activity. Think layer-by-layer, we recommend wool or some other material that keeps you dry closest to your body. A warm down jacket makes a very nice outer layer if it’s really cold outside. And don’t forget warm shoes, gloves and a cap. If you come from a warm country or do not wish to carry a lot of bulky clothing with you, you can rent equipment at Tromsø Outdoor and City to Summit. Read more about them on page 61 and 142.

Surrounding Tromsø are mountains, fjords, islands, white sand beached and deep woods – also called the Tromsø Region. If you have enough time, we highly recommend exploring the region, by car, ferries, bus or maybe even bicycles!

Closest to Tromsø is Kvaløya island and Sommarøy. From here you can reach the next biggest island in Norway, Senja. Driving from Tromsø going south, you will reach Lyngenfjord and eventually Målselv. Within a 3-hour radius of downtown Tromsø you will be able to experience “Northern Norway in a nutshell”. Have fun!

Explore more
Tromsø and the region
From September to April, the Northern Lights dominate the sky in Tromsø. Although you can sometimes see the aurora right in the city centre, it is often best to take a Northern Lights hunt, chasing the green lady across the skies, or take a polar-night dog sled under the sweeping aurora. For those searching for the explorer within, a snowmobile tour over the mountains, or a five-day trek with the Sami herding the reindeer, will enliven your adventurous side. In our wide selection of winter activities there is something for everyone.

Nature and wildlife
As the snow melts and summer arrives, many head into the fjords, fishing for their dinner. You can do the same, catch your own cod, and then cook it for dinner. Hiking is also extremely popular, and you can experience some of the 600 accessible mountain tops in the Tromsø region. Our rich Arctic wildlife is blooming during summer and can be enjoyed both on land or from the sea. Explore our summer activities here.

Culture and vibrant city life
The city has a rich cultural life with city cafes and bars, always enjoyed both by the locals, students and travellers. Internationally recognized restaurants serve up cuisine with produce sourced from local farms and fisheries, with a range of arctic dishes hard to find anywhere else. Unique cultural events, such as Tromsø International Film Festival and the Northern Lights festival take place, filling the city with people from all over the world. The nightlife is filled with the excited chatter of people re-living their latest experience – although you really need to try it firsthand to truly understand.

Nature, culture, city-life, local food and drink; we really do have it all in the Arctic Capital.

Welcome to Tromsø – now release the explorer within you!
Kvaløya and Sommarøy is only a 10 minute – 1 hour drive away from Tromsø. Driving through these islands you will be rewarded with the view of majestic mountains, and crystal clear blue waters and white sand beaches.

Kvaløya’s tall mountains and extreme peaks protects Tromsø from the Atlantic Ocean. A drive, or even a bike ride around the island, will take you to everything from old rock carvings to white sand beaches and tall peaks. A small, but vibrant coastal community has grown in the ocean gap, and in Sommarøy traditions are still being kept alive.

Water activities
Kayak along the coast or go on adventurous Rib-tours either during summer in the Midnight Sun or during winter, experiencing the Northern Lights from the water. Both Sommarøy Arctic Hotel and Yggdrasil tunet farmhotel offers, for example, diving opportunities and boatrides in summer and whale- and sea safaris during winter.

Relax
During summer there’s nothing better than bringing your bathing suit and relax on the white sand beaches around the islands. If the weather’s a bit more chilly, there’s opportunities of renting saunas and jacuzzies (with a view) on Sommarøy. Yggdrasil tunet farmhotel in Kvaløya has a variety of farm animals like Icelandic horses, sheep, goats, chickens and bunnies. Here’s also a café and restaurant serving homemade, local food. The scenic area around the hotel offers many hiking opportunities, as well as saunas and hot tubs.

Culture
Here is a rich culture life, both new and from the older days. One of the oldest lighthouses in Northern Norway, Hekkingen Fyr, can be reached from Sommarøy, only a 15 min boat ride away. Enjoy the rich birdlife and exotic Northern Norwegian nature. The battleship Tirpitz was attacked next to Håkøya in 1944, and in Skavberg you can see rock carvings from 2500-5000 years back. In recent years, Bryggejentene has established in Ersfjorden. Also worth a visit is Profi Glassdesign located in an old school that has been completely renovated. Here they have a workshop, studio and café.

How to get here:
KVALØYA
Car: 6 km, about a 15 minute drive to Kvaløysletta
Directions: A nice round trip of 2,5 hours will take you through mountains and fjords to the coast, and back again.

Målselv has excellent hiking opportunities in easier terrain through the forest, or up steeper mountain tops, well fitted for both families and more extreme hikers. Go fishing in rivers and waters, and get to know Northern Norwegian and Sami culture up close and personal. With narrow rivers and open mountain plateaus, Målselv has the typical Northern Norwegian inland landscape.

Cold or warm, a visit to the most northern indoor swimming pool, Polarbadet, is worth a trip. During winter there’s a selection of activities to participate in such as dog sledding, snowmobiling, moose safaris or reindeer sledding.

Fishing
Målselvfossen might be the best place to fish for salmon in Norway, and has been popular for decades of time. The scenery around Målselva is spectacular during summer with deep forests surrounding it. Keep in mind that a fishing card is needed in order to be allowed to fish in the river. Målselvfossen can also be visited and enjoyed even if you are not going to be fishing.

Wildlife
Dovdalen National Park is located close to the Swedish border and preserves little disturbed inland valleys and mountain areas. You might even get a glimpse of its wild animals. If you want to be ensured seeing arctic animals, Polar Park located in Bardu, is perfect to visit with family and friends. Spend the day in wild surroundings watching wolves being fed and bears playing alongside. Polar Zoo hosts activities like ziplining and bouldering, as well as being home for the wild animals.

Skiing
Målselv fjellandsby (mountain village) is open both summer and winter, with good hiking and skiing opportunities. You have the option of renting cabins or apartments and stay for several days, or even just spend one day cross-country or downhill skiing. The panorama view of the Målselv valley is almost worth the visit itself.

How to get there:
Car: 132 km, about a 2 hour drive to the village Bardufoss in the middle of Målselv
Directions: Hit the E6 going south from Tromsø and follow directions to Narvik. You’ve reached Målselv when signs of Moen and Bardufoss are displayed.
There are buses going daily from Tromsø to Målselv, but public transportation is limited.

Licences & regulations
If you are going fishing, remember to get your licences.

How to get there
By bus: the region is accessible by public bus (150/kilo)
Car: at least 200 km (depends on your final destination). To reach the Lyngen Alps, you will need to use the ferry over the Ullsfjord (Breivikdet – Svensby) and the ferry over the Lyngenfjord (Lyngseidet – Olderdalen)
Hurtigruten & Speed boat: take the Hurtigruten to Skjervøy or the Speed boat (Hurtigbåt Nr. 3) to Lyngen (Nord-Lenangen), Arnøya and Skjervøy.

The Midnight Sun

During the Arctic summer nights, the city of Tromsø never sleeps and the people from the north enjoy every minute of the orange sky. The Midnight Sun is a natural phenomenon that only occurs in places north of the Arctic Circle during the summer months. It is a magical time of the year and it means that summer has finally arrived in the north.

Do you have a dream about experiencing bright summer nights and a glowing Midnight Sun that almost sinks into the sea before rising again? In areas surrounding Tromsø, you can enjoy the tranquility, the majestic mountains, listen to the birds chirping and the sound of the waves, and perhaps enjoy a close-up encounter with arctic wildlife. In Tromsø, the Midnight Sun is visible for 24 hours from late May until late July. The period is longer, the further north you travel.

Activities during the Midnight Sun

Our activity providers offer a variety of tours, and our visitors do activities in the middle of the night just to experience the Midnight Sun. When you explore the wilderness during the night, you get to see nature and wildlife in a different light. Taking a fjord tour by boat or car lets you experience the fjords and the mountain under the majestic Arctic Light. Hiking during the Midnight Sun is a perfect activity for those who wish to spend some time in a beautiful mountain landscape. You can also go exploring our narrow fjords by kayak. We have plenty of activities that suit everyone - come and experience the unique climate with us!
The Northern Lights

Northern Norway is home to one of the world’s most spectacular natural light shows. The Northern Lights are known as Aurora Borealis, which means ‘dawn of the north’. The Northern Lights are always present, but winter is usually the best time to see them, due to lower levels of light pollution and the clear, crisp air.

It is possible to see the Northern Lights from September to April, depending on the weather conditions and solar activity. If the sky is clear, you might be able to see the Northern Lights right above the city centre, but to increase your chances we recommend going on a tour away from the bright city lights. There are no guarantees that you will see the aurora dancing above the sky, but our Northern Lights activity suppliers do their utmost to make it possible for you to experience it. Seeing the Northern Lights often requires patience. The more days you have available, the greater the chance that both the solar activity and the weather will cooperate.

Northern Lights chase or experience?
We offer a wide selection of Northern Lights tours. You can choose between a Northern Lights chase or a Northern Lights experience. During a Northern Lights chase, you join one of our experienced and knowledgeable providers who will fulfil your dream of seeing the Aurora. The chase might take up to 10 hours depending how far away the clear skies are for that specific evening/night. Northern Lights experiences are activities that offer that bit of extra adventure to your Arctic experience. It’s as if the nature in the Tromsø region was especially created for outdoor adventures. On the next pages, you can read about our activity suppliers. Check out our website for more than 80 activities to book and choose from.

Northern Lights tourism guidelines

Northern Lights tourism has increased dramatically in recent years, and it is extremely important that our guests conduct themselves correctly whilst out in our fragile nature. This is for both your own safety, the safety of others around you, and the sustainability of our beautiful destination.

Below are some guidelines to keep everyone safe and happy!

PLEASE DO

• Use registered guide companies.
• Listen to your guide. They will give you good practical and safety advice.
• Wear reflective clothing whilst out on tour.
• Respect the locals.
• Give way to local traffic.
• Respect resting places. If you or your tour stop in a resting space, please be aware of other users.
• If you have a hire car, please be careful on the roads. Drive to the conditions, keep a low speed and be aware of local traffic, people and animals.

PLEASE DON’T

• Do not walk in the middle of the road.
• Do not light fires next to other traffic, and never in resting places.
• Please do not trespass onto private land.
• Please do not drop litter.

Quick guide for Northern Lights photography

1. Set your camera in manual mode (M).
2. Set the focus to Infinity.
3. ISO is all about light sensitivity and poor light requires high ISO. Set the ISO to 1200. Depending on the light (very strong Northern Lights, full moon, lot of snow), 1600 or even 800 might be enough.
4. You need the aperture (f) to be as wide as possible (the lowest number), f: 1.8, f: 2.8, f: 3.2
5. You need to get the fastest possible shutter speed to “freeze” the Northern Lights’ movements. Long shutter speeds make the Green Lady appear like a veil over the sky. Anything from 2–30 seconds can work depending on your camera.
6. Use a tripod or rest your camera on something steady. Set the self-timer on 2–3 seconds so you have time to let go of the button before it starts taking pictures.
7. Be prepared! Sort your camera settings at home before you go out. You want to be ready if she appears.

Skiing down steep mountainsides on silky powder snow is the best thing Nikolai Schirmer knows. As a professional skier and filmmaker, he has made a living in recent years by travelling the world making epic ski films from the coolest ski destinations in the world.

“As a skier, you certainly notice the effects of climate change. Higher temperatures mean less snow. When you travel to Japan or Argentina to ski in the mountains, only to discover that the temperature is warm and the snow conditions are poor, you know deep down that the flight you have just taken is contributing in the long run to the disappearance of winter. Naturally it’s not a 1:1 ratio but feels a bit like pissing in your pants. The link between skiing and climate is very strong. It feels pretty senseless to know that you are contributing to destroy what you love most,” says Schirmer.

When the 29-year-old discovered that his annual CO2 emission was around 40 tonnes, he decided to try to do something about it. He set himself a target of reducing this to 12 tonnes, which is the level of the average Norwegian. This was the start of the film and climate project “Endless Winter”. The aim was to see if he could do more and better skiing, have at least as much fun but avoid travelling the earth. To put it simply: Do more but reduce his climate footprint – and make three ski films in the process.

From surf to ski

Schirmer grew up on top of Tromsø’s main island, overlooking majestic mountains such as Bentsjordtind and Blåmann from the living room window. It’s easy to think he grew up skiing, but as a child he dreamed of being something completely different.

“I actually wanted to be a professional surfer! There are not so many waves in Tromsø, so I often travelled to Lofoten. I didn’t discover the ski culture until I was 12 or 13 years. I was attracted by the freedom and because it was fun. There were no coaches; it was all about friendship, play and fun. I have never liked organised activities, so when we started freeriding it was like a counterbalance to organised skiing with mogul skiing and the like. It was about regaining our freedom. We went to Kroken every day to do skiing,” says Schirmer.

Influence

After finishing upper secondary school, Schirmer got his first sponsors. It provided money, but not enough to survive. Three summer jobs and a diet of porridge helped fund ski trips to the Alps in the winter. After a while he started studying law, which fitted perfectly with his lifestyle as a skier.

“Studying law was great because there were no compulsory lectures. I spent four seasons in Chamonix and travelled to South Africa and Southeast Asia to surf. After all, you get financial support to study and NOK 100,000 a year comes in handy,” says Schirmer.

He eventually completed his studies and for the last two years Schirmer has worked full-time as a skier and filmmaker. He combines his own film projects with commercial jobs and sponsorship assignments for clothing and equipment brands such as Sweet Protection and Norrøna.

“One day I began to question my own lifestyle. Did I really need to travel around the world to provide the content my sponsors and followers expect, or would it be possible to do things in a better and more sustainable way and also achieve a better result?”

Endless winter

Can you do better and more epic skiing, have more fun than ever and save the planet a bit at the same time? That was the question professional skier and filmmaker Nikolai Schirmer (29) asked himself when he decided to start his climate and film project “Endless Winter”.

“Yes! I get paid to influence people to buy things,” says Schirmer. “I've always done what I thought I needed to do to be a professional skier, like my ski heroes. I thought I had to fit a stereotype of what a pro skier is, but the Endless Winter project has proven to me that I was wrong to think that. I just hadn’t explored the alternatives to flying around the world to do heli-skiing in Japan or Whistler in Canada every time the opportunity arose.”

Can a person influence?

“Yes! I get paid to influence people to buy things, including as a Norrøna ambassador. When I go ski touring and post a story on Instagram from a nice mountain, it doesn’t take long until I get messages asking where I am. By the following day, many new people have been there. By raising awareness about our climate footprint, maybe I can influence people to think a bit more about the climate.”

Schirmer decided to use his voice to create awareness about climate emissions and how people can make a difference.

Authentic experiences

He believes that much of the problem with climate-related issues is that there is often a very negative focus. “People really just want to have a good time! If the solutions to the problem are irritating and the result of doing nothing is also irritating, it’s hard to motivate people to make actual changes. The solution is to show that you can work to solve the problem and make it cooler at the same time. Immediately it becomes more motivating to make changes. Consequently, the aim of the project has been to do what I have always done, just in a more environmentally friendly way and have even more fun,” says Schirmer.

To achieve this, Schirmer has flown less, spent longer in the same place and become a vegetarian to reach the goal of lowering his CO2 emission. The three ski films were filmed in Tromsø and on the island of Kvaløya, in Tyrol in Austria and in Lyngen.

“I've rigged myself in a far better way. In 2018, I made 20 episodes for a web series. I spent the whole time flying around and I worked with professional photographers. In 2019, I've scaled my project down to three episodes. I have replaced the Hollywood folks with my closest and best friends, and I’ve spent longer in each place. It shines through in the result,” says Schirmer.

“People want to see good experiences on the mountain and that you’re having fun with your friends. The feeling of standing on the summit of a mountain in Lyngen with my friend, Krister Kopalø, and seeing the wonderful terrain we didn’t know about and the sun shining...yes, we were completely ecstatic. This project has been far more authentic than a lot of the other things I’ve done.”

What are your best tips for others who want to have a more conscious relationship with their own climate impact?

“Visit the website Ducky.eco and calculate your personal carbon footprint. You can enter information about your life and find out the extent of the emissions you are responsible for. I started with 40 tonnes. You can also enter the changes you make and see the effect of these. It was interesting to see with my own eyes which of my emissions had the biggest impact. Flying was my worst one so therefore my main change was to fly and travel less,” says Schirmer, adding:

“I reduced the number of flights I took and decided to spend more time at the places I visited. I also became more aware of the climate-related costs of things. Once you start counting and becoming conscious, something happens with your mindset. I was in Innsbruck when a photographer from a ski destination about an hour’s drive away called asked if I wanted to be in a shoot with Red Bull. I thought cool, but is it really worth it? Suddenly, I related to emissions in the same way as my bank account.”

Has it been worth it?

“Yes. I've skied a lot with my best friends. We have been extremely lucky with the skiing conditions. Good pre-season here in Tromsø, the best January season in the Alps since the 60s, and insane experiences in Lyngen. I've had the best winter of my life.”

Ps! The Endless Winter film series was made in collaboration with among others #pantforpudder and Infinitum Movement, which Schirmer is also ambassador for. The third and final film was released on 18 November 2019. You can find them on YouTube.
In Tromsø, you can have a real encounter with the Sami people. The Sami people welcome you to their nature reserve close to Tromsø.

Sami families are proud to share their culture and history through food, stories, information and reindeer sledding. About 40,000 Sami lives in Norway, 20,000 in Sweden, 7,300 in Finland, and 2,000 in Russia. Today only 1 percent of Sami work in the reindeer industry. Reindeer sledding is the oldest means of transportation in Northern Norway. The indigenous Sami people, making these trips an ideal way to encounter their culture and to meet the reindeer.

In the summer, you can book a tour to one of our sami activity providers and experience their way of life. One of the main activities is to meet and feed the reindeer, and let them tell you about their culture. If you are lucky, they will even sing you a traditional Sami joik. During the winter period, you can travel across snow-covered terrain by a reindeer sled (depending on snow conditions). This activity is very popular and suits both children and adults. On some of the tours, you can also try ice fishing, or you can book this separately to fulfill your Sami experience.

Meet our husky friends and go out on a mini expedition in the Troms region. We promise – it will be an unforgettable adventure.

In winter, you can go dogsledding in all kinds of weather if there is enough snow. The sled is usually shared by two; one is standing up; controlling the direction and speed, known as ‘mushing’, while the other is seated and just enjoying the ride.

The adventure begins when you hop on the sled and let the huskies pull you over the frozen landscape. While dogsledding you can enjoy the stunning views of the ocean and surrounding mountains. During the Polar Night, the only light we see is from the stars and the moon – and if we’re lucky, Lady Aurora might put on a show.

In summer, you can go on a hike with the puppies and help the mushers train the future sled dogs. You can also go hiking with the huskies to explore the nature of Northern Norway. You are also welcomed to just meet and cuddle with the huskies.
Arctic Wildlife

Tromsø and Northern Norway offers many different wildlife species. The moose, the reindeers and a wide range of bird species like the predatory sea eagle, are common sights in the Tromsø region. If you go on a boat trip, you might get lucky and catch a glimpse of seals and different types of whales like orcas, humpback whales or pilot whales as they follow the herring shoals during the winter months.

Here you can go exploring the white beaches, look up on the steep mountains and enjoy the amazing marine wildlife. Kayaking is a great way to experience the sea while being active.

Skis and snowshoeing

Cross-country skiing has been a part of the North Norwegian culture for centuries. They say that the Norwegians are born with skies on their feet and love outdoor activities. A short lesson is recommended for absolute beginners, while the more experienced can conquer mountains. During the winter months, there are illuminated ski tracks for anyone to use crossing the whole Island of Tromsø.

Snowshoeing is great for individuals and families who enjoy exploring nature in beautiful and peaceful surroundings. If you can walk, you can go snowshoeing. Quite simply, it's a way of walking easily on deep snow. You can go snowshoeing during the day or during the evening with a professional guide. Participants need no previous experience of snowshoeing, as your guide will teach you everything you need to know.

Fishing

You cannot visit Northern Norway without seeing if the fish is biting! If you head out to sea, catching a fish is almost a guarantee. Cod, pollock, halibut or wolfish are among the most common species. As soon as the lakes have frozen, it is time to go ice fishing. You will learn how to drill your own hole in the ice, bait the line... and enjoy the thrill of the wait. As it is often a few degrees colder on a boat or a frozen lake, the activity suppliers will provide you with an extra outer layer of waterproof clothing.

Visit Tromsø!
A Musher’s Home

The Villmarkssenter is one of Tromsø’s oldest tourism companies – even though it did not start out as one. Founded in 1988 by Tove Sørensen, it was originally meant for sled dog breeding only. Tove started out with 6 Alaskan Huskies, a profound love for the Arctic nature, and the dream to one day finish the Finnmarkslopet dog sled race. At first, sledding was only her private hobby, but that changed quickly after hosting her first guests.

The dogs are of course the stars of every program. By now, the center is home to over 300 Alaskan Huskies, 40 of them are racing with Tove and her youngest son Torkil. Her dream of crossing the Finnmarkslopet finish line has long since come true. As the only woman and 5th musher world-wide with over 20 starts, her nickname is “Lady #1 of Finnmarkslopet”. Torkil achieved his first top ten placing in 2019. Both compete in other races, too. In 2006, Tove’s participation in the world’s longest race Iditarod earned her the “Most Inspirational Musher”-Award. None of this would be possible without the dogs.

“Dog sledding is a team sport. My dogs only give everything for me, because they know I give everything for them. My whole company depends on their health, happiness and willingness to work with us. You have to earn that.”

Huskies born at the center have a life full of love and care, also when they are too old to work. Contact with guests plays an important part throughout, from socializing the puppies to cuddling with the adult dogs. Sounds like a job for you? Then book your adventure today!

And for the last 30 years, she made good on her word. Starting from Villmarkssenter, guests can explore the wilderness with dog-sledded or snowshoe hikes and while trekking or kayaking. All activities are non-motorized, for truly immersive nature experiences that disturb the environment as little as possible.

Arctic Guide Service

Top Bucket List Item: Seeing the Northern Lights

People travel from all over the world to chase the Northern lights in Tromsø. We wanted in on the adventure and joined Arctic Guide Service who knows the best spots for seeing the Northern Lights.

Fulfilling dreams

Sergi has worked as a guide for 3 years, and he never gets tired of chasing the Northern lights. The Northern Lights looks different every night, and when it starts dancing in different colours it’s amazing. Seeing the Northern lights makes him happy, but watching his guests experiencing it, often for the first time, makes him even happier. Witnessing people fulfil their dream about seeing the Northern Lights is the coolest thing.

In addition to being guides, Sergi and his guide colleagues at Arctic Guide Service are all amazing photographers. Photographing the Northern Lights is a skill. She is not an easy lady to photograph... When you join in on a chase with Arctic Guide Service, you’ll get photos included in the prize.

Shortly after, the bus stops. We have reached tonight’s destination – the best spot for clear skies and experiencing the Northern Lights tonight. We’re dressed up in thermos, hats and gloves, and grab our cameras for a walk along the forest path. And with that said, the sky opened, and the green lady started dancing in the sky above us...
The history of the Cable Car dates back to 1961, when four brothers decided to build it after earning some money in fisheries, seal hunting and polar expeditions. In the early sixties, there were few tourists in town except for holidaymakers from Sweden and Finland.

Today is a different story, and the Cable Car has 250,000 visitors a year. The journey itself takes just four minutes, but when arriving at the top you want to stay longer!

From the upper station you can enjoy the views over the surrounding mountains and fjords, go to the viewpoint Storsteinen, or even go for a hike to Fløya. Don’t forget to visit Fjellstua Cafe, which serves local food and snacks. During the winter season this is the perfect location to enjoy a good meal while waiting for the northern lights.

From 20th of May to around 24th of July, you can enjoy a nice cold drink, while the midnight Sun folks the horizon.

Come and experience it for yourself!

Welcome!

Large and small concerts are arranged year round, and the streets in the city centre are full of restaurants and bars that combine local produce with international flavors. Tasting the North Norwegian delicacy “stockfish” is mandatory. Let’s not forget the shopping. In Tromsø you can find everything from knitwear to arts and craft, interior, jewellery, high fashion, vintage treasures, local food products and souvenirs.

Welcome to the urban arctic!
“Once I parachuted from 15,000 feet. It just went on and on and on. I was in free-fall for over a minute and even had time to think about what to have for dinner that day. Snocross is much more intense. Competing and trying to be the best rider! But I also love dancing: performing, competing in battles and stuff like that. I get a real adrenaline kick when I dance,” grins Mariann Meszaros Josefsen.

While Mariann may come across as a fearless adrenaline junkie (and she is), the sporty 29-year-old is actually much more down-to-earth than people might think. "I have always loved the feeling of an adrenaline rush, and especially the kick that dancing and snow-scooter riding gave me. They are two completely different kicks, and I need them both. I have yet to find one single activity that gives me the same kick. Sadly, I don't do snocross anymore, because of dance injuries. Snocross is a very hard and expensive sport, but I still love riding a snow-scooter in the forests and open countryside. It may not be as exciting as cross-riding, but it's still fun to go for a ride and challenge yourself, even if you're not competing."

Sporty family

The 29-year-old is originally from Lakselv in Finnmark – a trilingual municipality where Sami, Kven and Norwegian are spoken. She grew up here in a very active family, as number three of four siblings. Her parents passed their sporty lifestyle on to her. "My dad was a scooter dealer, and my mum worked at the local youth club. I used to dance a lot at the club and loved watching the older kids. I get my passion for snow-scooters from my parents. They were among the first people in Norway to get a licence to ride snocross," says Mariann, who was 14 when she first rode a snow-scooter.

"I didn't have a typical Norwegian childhood, with long weekends spent at the family cabin. Since both my brothers also did snocross, we spent a lot of time together as a family. At the weekends, we would pack up the car and drive from competition to competition in Finnmark, Sweden and Finland. I was the only girl in Finnmark who did snocross, so I won a lot of competitions. They were happy days,” says Mariann.

"My big brother is my idol!” she continues. “He won the Norwegian championship in the supercross branch of snocross in 2009.”

Moved to be able to dance

At the age of 17, Mariann decided to pursue a career in hip-hop. She packed her dance shoes in her suitcase and set off for the Arctic capital to study dance at Kongsbakken Upper Secondary School. "I love hip-hop, and Tromsø had a bigger dance scene than Lakselv, where I often ended up dancing alone. I was only allowed to move so far from home because my sister, who is 13 years older than me, lived in the city."

In Tromsø, Mariann also started her own dance school at the Tvibit youth culture house. It quickly became very popular and had 100 students. Mariann shared her knowledge generously, teaching almost all the classes herself. "I was dancing all the time, and after a couple of years, my body had simply had enough. It was all too much. I was suddenly bored of dancing and was completely burnt out. In the end, I handed the dance school over to some other people, moved back to Finnmark and started riding snocross again. I didn't want to dance anymore."

Life on hold

After a while, Mariann moved to Trondheim to study, but had scarcely begun her studies when she fell seriously ill.
“My life simply ground to a halt! I got a disease called anti-NMDA receptor encephalitis, which causes the immune system to run amok and attacks the brain. I ended up in a sleep coma for about a month, and was on sick leave for two years. It took ages to build myself up again. I basically lost two years of my life, from the age of 23-25, which was incredibly rough. I was at a standstill and simply had to wait. At the same time, you learn a lot from this kind of experience. I think I’ve become more empathetic.”

During her sick leave, Mariann had to learn to calm down. She spent much of her time sewing and making traditional Sami fringed shawls.

“I love sewing and needlework. I remember my grandmother doing a lot of sewing when I was little. We had duodji [traditional Sami handicrafts] as a subject at school, but I’m mostly self-taught. I got my first sewing machine for my 13th birthday,” Mariann says.

Happy to share

Mariann is back. In Tromsø, at Tvibit, and as a dance teacher. She has trained as a child and youth worker and has many other projects under way.

“I like the cultural life here in Tromsø, and the attitude up here that nothing is impossible. Especially at Tvibit, where I work. Its philosophy is that you shouldn’t be afraid to dream!”

“When I was hired at Tvibit two years ago, I hadn’t fully recovered from my illness. I had memory problems and had to spend quite a lot of time getting back to my former level. Luckily, I am fairly free to shape my job myself, and it offers good opportunities to grow and develop. I’ve always had a lot of projects and stuff going on at the same time. Things are going really well now, and I probably have more energy now than when I fell ill. Perhaps, I’m trying to make up for lost time.”

As part of her job, she teaches young people between the ages of 15 and 30 hip-hop and holds courses in traditional Sami handicrafts. There is a great deal of interest in the courses in duodji.

“I have held courses on making fringed shawls, pewter bracelets and luhkka [traditional, short, hooded capes]. The people who take these courses are young people with a Sami background and students who want to learn more about Sami culture. Often foreign students. A lot of people want to know more about Sami traditions, while others are just curious. It’s actually very interesting to see who shows up.”

Popular on social media

Mariann says that there has been an explosion in interest in Sami culture in recent years. She gives social media and tourism much of the credit for the sudden increase in the popularity of Sami culture. On her Instagram account, Mariann shares her eclectic interests in a wonderful medley. She says that her posts about Sami handicrafts are always well received.

“Something happened back in 2008–2009, with a sudden increase in interest in all things Sami. I was one of the first people to start sharing duodji on Instagram and using Sami hashtags. Every time I publish a picture of a gákti, I get loads of likes. People seem to love it, which is brilliant. At the same time, I wish people would also like the scooter posts I share as well,” Mariann laughs.

“Sami culture is very colourful, and it looks good in photos. There are also many tourists who come up to me and say things like: ‘Wow, this is so cool’, which also has a positive, snowball effect, and it seems that people think: ‘If they like it, maybe we should like it too.’”

Loves making gáktis

Mariann’s favourite thing to make is gáktis [traditional Sami garment].

“I love making gáktis. I took a course five years ago and have since made several for myself, but I have told the whole family that I will make them gáktis for free, if they buy the fabric. It’s great knowing I’m helping keep a tradition alive, and making something that will actually be used. I made a summer gákti for my niece, with unicorns on it. Needless to say, she chose the fabric herself.”

Mariann explains that some liberties can be taken in terms of the fabric used to make a gákti, but that it is important to make sure they have all the right details and respect the traditions.

“I’m a little bit scared of the gákti police, but it’s good that they’re out there, to make sure the traditions aren’t forgotten and lost forever.” Mariann has a plan to learn how to make men’s gáktis as well. “I’ve asked my dad if he wants one, but he says that that time is long gone. I know he’s proud of me, and he always takes a picture of me when I’m wearing a gákti. He’s proud, but that’s how it is with both Sami and Finnmark families. It’s a tough environment, and people don’t talk about their feelings much.”

“I do sometimes wonder what my grandmother would have thought about me wearing a gákti, if she were still alive today. When you have been Norwegianised as much as she was, it might be difficult to accept. I suspect she might have been mortified, but I hope she would have been proud.”

What are your dreams for the future?

“To run my own duodji business!”

Norwegianisation was the Norwegian authorities’ policy to assimilate Samis and later also Kvens and was in force from around the mid-1800s and right up until the 1960s.

Arctandria
The restaurant Arctandria is located in an old store house on the quayside in central Tromsø. As the name suggests, seafood is the order of the day at Arctandria Sjømat Restaurant. Come for its smoked or salted seal and grilled stockfish, stay for its views over the fjord and its stylish warehouse-esque interior. The dishes are based on locally supplied specialties from Troms region. Aptly titled, the word ‘Arctandria’ is often translated as the ‘gateway to the Arctic Ocean’, most notably by Petter Dass.

Bardus Bistro is a Norwegian reflection of the traditional bistro concept with a menu based on the ingredients and culinary history of the north. Priding ourselves on our strong personal relationships with suppliers, Bardus creates inventive and ever changing menus using ingredients such as moose, reindeer, king crab, whale & fresh fish. It is very rare indeed that our ingredients arrive from any postal code other than Tromsø and its region. Having said that, where the cod swims really is out of our hands, however the hook and its owner are most certainly local. We serve food according to season, and to satisfy our own curiosity. When the sun blesses us with its presence we’ll serve you on Tromsø’s most sun drenched and sheltered verandah. See you there!

Dining at Emma’s can be both intimate and formal, but above all, homely and relaxing. The perfectly prepared food is always tasty. Generosity, care, love and consideration, together with high expertise have been the main factors behind the restaurant’s success. This year they proudly celebrate their 20th anniversary.

Genuine and honest food
Emma’s dream kitchen is well versed in traditional French cuisine and also keeps abreast of the latest trends, fashion and culinary skills, but above all she appreciates as they say in the north, «real food». Well prepared local produce, just like our mothers and their mothers before them used to make.

Boknafisk of skrei (semi-dried cod) and fish au gratin are two such authentic North Norwegian dishes. They always remain on the menu while other dishes change 5 – 6 times a year, according to season.

- Our famous fish au gratin actually started out as a staff dish, but after we put it on the menu, it has been the locals’ favourite dish for years, says Anne Brit.

Emma's famous "fish au gratin"

4 persons:
- 80 grams butter
- 80 grams flour
- ½ litre whole milk
- ½ onion
- 250 grams macaroni
- 500 grams Pollock fillet or other white fish
- 20 pilled shrimps
- Salt, pepper and nutmeg to taste

Heat the milk to just below boiling point.
- Boil the macaroni and drain the water.
- Boil water with some salt.
- Pull the pan aside, add fish and let it simmer for 5 – 7 minutes. Do not boil.
- Fry onions and butter on low heat for 2 minutes. Add flour and let it fry for another 2 minutes.
- Add the milk, little by little to the flour mixture while stirring, but be careful not to burn the sauce.
- Season the sauce with salt, pepper and ground nutmeg.
- Add ready-drawn fish and boiled macaroni.
- Add shrimps.
- Sprinkle with breadcrumbs and add some butter.
- Bake in the middle of the oven at 200 degrees for 20 minutes.
- Serve with fried bacon, boiled potatoes and salad.

Bon appetit!

110 SHOPS IN TROMSØ

111 SHOPS IN TROMSØ
These two everyday heroes work for Tromsø ASVO, which for three decades has provided meaningful jobs for people who have fallen outside the ordinary labour market. In addition, they contribute to great wealth creation in Tromsø.

“I love my job. What I like best about it is my colleagues and that we do so many different things,” says Egon, who has been with the company for 25 years.

Strong work ethic

“It’s amazing to come to work every day and see such pride, joy and strong work ethic. It’s quite unique,” says Trude Orpetved, managing director of Tromsø ASVO.

“I think everyone could learn a lesson from them!”

The company has approximately 120 employees from all walks of life. Some have a mental disability, some are former drug users, and some are ordinary people. At Tromsø ASVO, they are all simply colleagues. The tasks are varied, but all have a human focus.

“We deal with waste both from nursing homes and in the streets. We clean up and do various odd jobs for city centre clients. In addition, we pack and deliver 600 fruit baskets to local businesses, offer catering services, and run a café at one of the city’s nursing homes. Each employee has an individual plan drawn up for their work tasks, based on a mapping of their skills and strengths. To ensure our employees get a sense of accomplishment, it is important that everyone is challenged in different tasks,” Trude explains.

One of the goals of the company and the employees is to be visible in the streets and the industry. This shows that all people has a value and being able to have a job is important for everyone.

Workplace cakes and fruit

We joined Egon and Rasmus as they went about their work on an average Tuesday in February. It is a cool, grey winter’s day in Tromsø, but the lads are in good spirits. Tromsø city centre is small enough that the route to work can be switched up, and it is not uncommon to bump into colleagues and acquaintances along the way.

“It’s amazing to come to work every day and see such pride, joy and strong work ethic. It’s quite unique.”

“The best part for me is when there has been a lot to do, and then it calms down, and we get time to talk to each other. That’s always fun. There is a really good atmosphere here,” says Rasmus.

Tromsø ASVO’s premises are buzzing with life. The fruit has been packed and is ready for delivery to businesses around the city. For Rasmus and Egon, the day’s work consists of cleaning up in the streets and delivering a homemade carrot cake to one of the city’s cafes. Rasmus wheels the trolley where the carrot cake is safely placed, and Egon follows him with the street cleaning equipment. They are ready for the day’s work.

Rasmus has worked at ASVO for two years and likes structured work best. Together with three others, he is responsible for systematising the lists of fruit for delivery to companies.

“This autumn I’m going to go to a folk high school, but I hope to return to Tromsø and my job here in a few years’ time,” says Rasmus, who is ready for new adventures.

The cake has been delivered, and Egon has finished clearing up. They are both eager to embark on new tasks. One thing is certain: the work done by the everyday heroes in Tromsø ASVO makes Tromsø a better city.

Find the Arctic atmosphere
One of my favorite things to do is eating at Jordbærpikene when it is dark outside. With a clear sky full of stars it makes it extra special enjoying a meal (nachos with homemade quacamole for example)!

Linda, works at Vita Nerstranda.

Shop like the locals at Nerstranda

How do locals in Tromsø dress? Where do locals in Tromsø buy the best chocolate? Where do locals in Tromsø buy the best skincare?

Shop like the locals amongst our 40 stores in Nerstranda shopping mall. We’re located centrally on the harbour next to Strandterget with views over mountains and the Arctic Cathedral, as well as being close to many hotels in the city centre, coffee shops and other stores.

Follow the pulsating city-life inside the mall and stay warm and cozy all year long. Wander amongst trendy brand stores, well-known chain stores or take a break in one of our restaurants/cafés. If you are in need of a pharmacy, ATM, storage boxes, liquor store and more, you will find it all under the same roof.

If you’d like to find some of Tromsø’s treasures, you can’t go wrong with these local favourites. Let’s explore!

Can you fit a whole life in a suitcase?

The answer is yes! This gem of a house is known as “the suitcase” or “the iron”. It may not be Tromsø’s smallest house, but it sure will be difficult to find a narrower house in the area. With its 28 sqm, it has become one of the most known houses in Tromsø...

Handmade arts & craft

WABI SABI is located in the courtyard of the old Mack brewery. Their arts and crafts are really something special. Here you can find jewelry with its own individual character crafted by hand in Tromsø. Despite being well hidden, inside the shop, there is an abundance of handmade jewelry. The artists Ann-Merete and Dagmar may give you a tour of their workspace, and you can even join one of their workshops to make your own jewelry.

We focus on authentic Italian pizza and ingredients, both in terms of food and drink. CASA INFERNO is both an experience for the taste of the Italian cuisine and also a visual experience for the innovative style. A tiny Italian food-embassy above the arctic circle. Open every day of the week.

Glassblowing with an open door
Since 2002, BLÅST GLASSBLOWING STUDIO has transformed hot liquid glass into distinctive works of art. Silja Skoglund and her dedicated staff put all their effort and passion into making the world a more beautiful one. Every item is unique and made in Tromsø, Arctic Norway.

Puzzle your way out
We’ve all found ourselves mesmerized by a puzzle, twisted our brains looking for the answer to a riddle and seen our heroes solve mysterious crimes on TV. At ARCTIC ESCAPE we combine all three: You and your teammates will be given a mission and locked in a thematic room filled with puzzles, mysteries and cryptic leads, with 60 minutes. If you solve all the riddles inside the room, you escape. If you don’t, you stay inside the room for another hour. You can purchase tickets and start your adventure at our office in Tromsø city center.

 Possibly the smallest bar in the universe
RAKETTEN was buildt in 1911 by a 18 year old woman, Margit Løkke. This little kiosk has survived two large city fires, and lives to tell the tale of this citys development. It is the only old kiosk still in business, and has got license to serve as a bar. The very best hot dogs, with locally produced buns and sausages, served with charm and smiles. Tromsø Mikrobryggeri
TROMSØ MIKROBRYGGERI is run by two friends from Kvaløysletta in Tromsø. We started brewing in a garage with an old school casserole in 2012. Now we produce around 30 000 litres of beer each year, in a variety of 20-15 types. We still produce after very old school principles without filters and pressure tanks, we only use handcraft and lots of time to let the beer rest and evolve naturally. So you can say we produce real handcrafted beer. The production is in the oldest part of Tromsen centrum (skippergata 15) in a 500 l. Kettle, so you can say the beer is as local as possible. In Storgata 78 we got 10 different draft lines in which we change types of beer almost every day.

Bank and currency: In Tromsø you can exchange currency at Ria. See p. 147 for info. We also recommend currency exchange at Oslo airport upon arrival in Norway. ATM machines are widely available in downtown Tromsø and at Tromsø airport. Please note that owing to bank fees it may be cheaper to use a debit card instead of exchanging money. Major credit and debit cards, such as Visa, MasterCard, American Express and Diners, are widely accepted throughout Norway. The official currency is the Norwegian krone (NOK), but several attractions and the Tourist Information Office accept some foreign currencies.

Parking: There is nowhere to park legally free of charge in downtown Tromsø during daytime. Ensure you have paid for sufficient time as fines are issued quickly. Parking at car parks must be prepaid at an automatic ticket dispenser or via a mobile app.

Drinking water: The tap water in Tromsø is very pure and clean and it is often better than bottled water.

Tipping: It is not uncommon to give tips in Norway and at most attractions. However, some art galleries and some museum exhibits have signs indicating that photography is not permitted. Photographing groups of people is usually ok, but if you are photographing an unknown individual, it is best and most polite to ask permission first. Photographing children or around schools and kindergartens is generally not accepted unless you have prior permission.

Top 5 rules for use of drones for play and leisure:
1. The drone should always be kept within your sight and operated in a mindful and considerate manner. Never fly near accident sites.
2. Never fly closer than 5 km from airports unless you have explicit clearance to do so.
3. Never fly higher than 120 meters off the ground.
4. Never fly over festivals, military sites or sporting events. Keep a distance of 150 meters.
5. Be considerate of others privacy. Take note of the rules concerning photos and films of other people.

Photography and use of drones: It is fine to take photos out in nature and at most attractions. However, some art galleries and some museum exhibits have signs indicating that photography is not permitted. It is not uncommon to give tips in Norway and at most attractions.
